s o paulo university brazil four years fapesp scholarship in s o paulo city brazil the project suggests the use of the breath figures technique in order to produce a thin non conductive or semiconductive porous polymer matrix of poly methyl methacrylate pmma or other polymers on a conductive substrate, chemical engineering with foundation year - this module introduces you to the properties of engineering materials and fluids such as tensile strength density and viscosity we also introduce heat transfer and fluid mechanics and their applications to practical engineering systems
